Lancaster City Council presented Council of the Year Award

Lancaster, TX – On June 22, 2017, the City of Lancaster City Council was announced as the City Council of the Year at the annual Texas City Management Association (TCMA) Annual Conference.

On Monday August 14, 2017, Paulette Hartman, Immediate Past President for TCMA, made the official presentation to the Council noting that it was the City Council's commitment to ethics by annually reviewing and reaffirming City Council rules and procedures, which includes a Code of Ethics. She also stated that Council placing the welfare of the citizenry above personal and political motives by supporting certain actions as well as rising again after tremendous tragedies, is what made them stand out.

Lastly, the City of Lancaster is one of the fastest growing cities in southern Dallas County. The Mayor and City Council have worked to address this growth through a focused vision, commitment to their constituency, and this year's theme of renaissance (spirit of transition).

Lancaster City Council will be recognized at the annual Texas Municipal League (TML) Annual Conference in October and will be a session presenter during the City Showcase Track. Our session topic will be: Lancaster – It will Work if you Work IT! The session will focus on Council/Staff Relations and how it translates into successful creation and implementation of an annual Strategic Plan.
